A former J.P. Morgan head of investors for the Southeast Asia region has joined Singapore-based external asset manager (EAM), Thirdrock Group.

Eric Goh, Thirdrock Group

Eric Goh has been appointed investment strategist and senior client advisor at Thirdrock, where he will focus on “augmenting Thirdrock’s investment advisory platform”, according to a media release from the EAM.

Goh joined J.P. Morgan in 2011 from BNP Paribas Wealth Management, where he served as head of investment advisory.

With two decades of banking experience, Goh has done stints at UBS Wealth Management and HSBC Private Bank in multi-asset class advisory, and at Republic National Bank of New York and DBS Private Bank in FX sales and advisory.

Founded in 2010, Thirdrock has in recent years expanded its client base to serve private and institutional clients globally.
