

Former J.P. Morgan specialist joins Singapore-based IAM

By Indira Vergis / 22 Jun, 2016

Singapore-based Thirdrock Group has announced a new hire.

It has appointed Eric Goh as investment strategist and senior client advisor, effective May.

Prior to joining Thirdrock, Goh was head of investors for Southeast Asia at J.P. Morgan Private Bank. He was also previously head of investment advisory at BNP Paribas Wealth Management.

Goh will focus on augmenting Thirdrock's investment advisory platform through the provision of value-added market insights, investment strategies and product solutions to clients and Thirdrock's client advisory team.

In his career, he has also held similar roles in multi-asset class advisory at UBS Wealth Management, HSBC Private Bank, as well as FX Sales and Advisory in Republic National Bank of New York and DBS Private Bank.

Headquartered in Singapore, Thirdrock is an independent asset management firm that focuses on servicing and advising sophisticated accredited investors and corporate clients globally.